

How tightly can matter hold together?

Bonds below the kT line fall apart at room temperature; they exist only in the cold.