

How strong can a material be?

Everyday materials sit ten orders of magnitude below the relativistic ceiling.